54 (SPLIT A) We need a tax code that encourages investment, not one that punishes success. We must end runaway regulations and big government bureaucracy that discourage investment rather than encouraging entrepreneurs, and we must sell more American products around the world. Obama and the Democrats have failed on all of these fronts. They say big government will help those who are trying to make it, but actually hurts the people who are trying to

The incentives are upside down-when people try to get off of welfare programs or leave to get jobs, they're worse off, and it traps them and keeps them in

Q.60 Recently, there has been a lot of reporting about a majority of households in America now being unmarried and 35 percent of children being raised by a single parent. There has also been discussion about inequality, low wages, poverty and lack of social mobility up the income ladder. Let me read you two statements about this. After I finish reading both statements, please tell me which statement comes closer to your own view, even if neither is exactly right.

The greatest tool to lift families from poverty isn't a government program. It's called marriage. We should help the poor make the right choices - stay in school, get married, and have children-in that order. But the federal government's massive bureaucracy discourages marriage. There are even marriage penalties in government programs like food stamps that discourage marriage and encourage poor people to stay on welfare. We can do a better job of reducing poverty and raising incomes.

It is tough out there for working people, the unmarried and people on their own. We need to raise wages so everyone who works full time can afford to pay their bills, help make job training and college affordable, help them manage work and family so they still get paid if they or their child gets sick. And we should reject trade agreements that hurt American jobs and budgets that make it harder to retire. Let's raise the odds for working families.
